CyberNotes

IBDB.com

The Internet Broadway Database is a great source for basic info on Broadway productions. It is run by the League of American Theatres and Producers. The information on older productions is a bit sketchy with coverage for Modern Broadway productions being more complete. All play titles are cross-referenced and searchable by show, person, organization or theatre.

insidehoops.com

This site is great for basketball fans of all levels of the game, including NBA, WNBA, CBA, high school. The site also includes a "Streetball" section to follow local events. Get commentary, playoff schedules, live-score boards and daily recaps. There is an amazing amount of data, including historical facts and stats. And the Rumors section offers contract, trade and other rumors from news sources around the country.
